M Gmail

Miodrag Milić <miodrag.milic@gmail.com>

Services2 redistribution

3 messages

Miodrag Milic <miodrag.milic@gmail.com>   Thu, Jun 14, 2018 at 7:01 PM
To: dalai82@gmx.net

Hi

Can I redistribute your TC plugin as a Chocolatey package ?
Chocolatey is free and open source package/software manager for Windows.

No changes to the files are done, they are just bundled with silent installer script and metadata.

See for example another Chocolatey TC plugin:
https://chocolatey.org/packages/tcp-qse

Thanks.

Dalai <dalai82@gmx.net>   Thu, Jun 14, 2018 at 7:48 PM
To: Miodrag Milic <miodrag.milic@gmail.com>

Hi,

MM> Can I redistribute your TC plugin as a Chocolatey package ?
MM> Chocolatey is free and open source package/software manager for Windows.

MM> No changes to the files are done, they are just bundled with silent MM> installer script and metadata.

Sure. As long as the plugin files are all there and unchanged, I don't mind at all.

One thing I want to mention though, is the plugin's configuration file (Services2.ini). I don't know Chocolatey (although I've heard of it before) and how it deals with such configuration files, in particular when the existence of this one file defines whether or not it's a portable "installation" (see section 4.1 in the plugin's readme).

But I'm sure you can figure that out :).

PS: The above also applies to my other plugin called Startups.

--
Regards
Dalai

dalai82@gmx.net
mailto:dalai82@gmx.net

Miodrag Milić <miodrag.milic@gmail.com>   Fri, Jun 15, 2018 at 7:59 AM

Draft To: Dalai <dalai82@gmx.net>

[Quoted text hidden]

Drag to outliner or Upload
Close